HARRISBURG (AP) — Legislation that would have raised speed limits on state highways was vetoed Friday by Gov. Scranton.

It was one of four bills vetoed by the governor. He signed one to clean up action on bills passed by the 1963 legislature.

—Raised from the present 50-miles-per-hour to 55 miles the speed limit for trucks on federal interstate or any controlled access highways.

—Permitted a maximum speed of 60 miles for passenger cars on roads 20 feet or more in width. (The limit now is 50 miles-per-hour).

—Changed from 35 miles to 50 miles the speed limit on roads less than 20 feet in width.

The governor, in his veto message, described the purposes of the measure as most meritorious and commended the sponsors for their interest, but added:

"I feel that there is a definite relationship between speed and the occurrence of automobile accidents and, therefore, any legislation intended to increase present speed limits should be subjected to further concentrated study prior to adoption."

Agency Opposes Pa.-N. J. Compact

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Commerce Department opposes a bill granting Congressional consent to a Pennsylvania-New Jersey compact for developing and financing Delaware River toll bridges and ports.

Department opposition to the measure was expressed in a report Thursday to the House commerce committee considering the bill.

The bill also would authorize the states to join in financing any bridge or bridges under control of the Delaware River joint toll bridge commission and to continue toll collections on all facilities until all indebtedness is paid.

Coal-To-Gasoline Project Started

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall signed Friday a $9,980,000 contract with Consolidation Coal Co. of Pittsburgh for a coal-to-gasoline pilot plant to be constructed at Cresap, near Moundsville, W.Va.

Under the contract, Consolidation will design, build and operate a plant designed to convert about 24 tons of coal a day into gasoline.

The process to be used, which has been developed by Consolidation and the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, is believed to be capable of producing high-grade gasoline at about one-half the cost of any previous coal-to-gasoline process, Udall said.

CAB Wants Low Atlantic Fares

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) served notice Friday that it expects the airlines to start operating a low-cost transatlantic service without frills. It has in mind a fare about $100 each way, about $100 below the current economy-class rate.

The board said in a policy statement, "It is of crucial importance to the financial welfare of the airlines, as well as in the interest of the traveling public, that these (international) markets be permitted to develop their full traffic potential."

Army Turncoat Leaves China

HONG KONG (AP)—A Belgian-born U.S. Army turncoat left Communist China Friday because, he said, "I was burned politically. I was politically disillusioned."

Former Sgt. Albert Belhomme, 34, crossed into the British crown colony with his Chinese wife, Hsiao Ying, 28, and their three young sons. He told newsmen:

"My main concern now is my family. I want my children to have a better future."

He said he would take them all to Antwerp, Belgium, in a few days time.

Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Casting a vote of confidence in the future of the market and the economy after the important Labor Day milestone, the stock market Friday staged a late rally which put the Dow Jones industrial average to its peak for 1963.

Topping its previous closing high this year of 726.96 reached May 21, the Dow industrials advanced 2.92 to 729.32.

Volume was 4.57 million shares compared with 5.11 million Thursday.

Crowd Throws Rocks, Eggs At New Negro Neighbor

FOLCROFT, Pa. (AP) — State police called for reinforcements Friday night to handle a growing, angry crowd throwing rocks, eggs and bottles at a house where a Negro family had moved in only hours earlier under guard by troops.

There were brief flurries of shouting and newsmen were pelted with eggs and rocks. Firecrackers exploded.

The crowd, which was estimated by state police at 800 to 1,000, began swelling shortly after dark. Men, women, teen-agers and children stood across from the home of Horace and Sara Baker, and at intervals bombarded it with rocks, bottles and stones.

Loud cheers preceded each rock- or bottle-throwing incident. There were no injuries, but at one point, when state police began hustling off a boy accused of throwing a rock, the crowd moved toward them and officers pushed the people back with riot sticks.

A patrolman announced over a loudspeaker that tear gas would be used unless the rock-throwing was stopped immediately.

The rock- and bottle-throwing continued. Then police called for more reinforcements.

Earlier, four arrests were made. They included James Van Dyk, an assistant professor of fine arts at the University of Pennsylvania, who was charged with inciting a riot after a group of angry demonstrators gathered around him.

Van Dyk said he was there as an individual "to protest this kind of hate."

Three teen-agers also were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct.

Friday night's rock and bottle throwing followed a day of demonstrating in which state police were jeered.

Earlier, 50 state troopers escorted Baker, 26, his wife and a moving van in the Delmar development. They entered the house. You dirty niggers—you'll never live here in peace."

Some rocks were thrown and one smashed a window. The crowd standing near the home began pushing ahead but police pushed it back.

The crowd included many children and teen-agers, who also joined in deriding the Negroes and police.

One teen-ager was taken into custody.

After their meeting, the President told reporters the mutual security program has protected dozens of countries since 1945.

"More importantly," he said, "it has protected the security and the best interests of the United States."

Clay, standing with the President, said his committee is greatly concerned about the reductions in military aid and in the Alliance for Progress program for Latin America.

"We think these reductions have gone too far and that they seriously endanger this program," Clay said.

However, in Washington, a Senate-House Republican leadership committee said that if bipartisan support for foreign aid has been destroyed, the President himself destroyed it by blaming the GOP for drastic House cuts.

The leadership group is led by Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, and Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, Senate and House minority leaders, respectively.

"It would have better become the office of the presidency had Mr. Kennedy at the same time noted that 66 Democrats, or better than one out of four, also voted to cut the program," a statement by the GOP group declared.

"Instead, he singled out only Republican who are outnumbered in the House 258-177."

The President had characterized the recent House slash as "shortsighted, unwise and dangerously partisan."

In his latest appeal, the President said it is important "that the American people understand that this is a matter which involves the security of the country in the balance of power all over the world."

Asked if there hadn't been a significant lessening in public support for the aid programs, the President said: "I don't think people enjoy carrying this burden. I never thought they did" but "in the final analysis I think most of them realize the essential part is our appropriation for national defense."

Washington (AP)—Congress was asked on Friday to make more coal mines subject to mandatory safety provisions which apply only to mines employing 15 or more persons underground.

Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall requested extension of the mandatory provisions of the federal coal mine safety act to about 8,000 small mines not now covered.

Udall wrote the speaker of the House and the president of the Senate recommending amendment of the 1952 act in four basic areas.

His action was based in part on the findings of a special interior task force which had studied since April the existing situation and what action is needed to increase mine safety.

The study was undertaken at Udall's direction after President Kennedy expressed concern over two major coal disasters which caused 50 deaths in a matter of a few months.

The appeal to Congress followed within hours a renewed expression by Kennedy to Udall of concern regarding mine disasters. The President expressed belief "that a country which has our wealth and scientific resources can perfect safety devices and procedures which will enable us to extract the mineral resources we need without excessive loss of human life."

The action also follows closely on two underground entrapments in the mining industry. In one, near Hazleton, Pa., two of three trapped anthracite miners were saved and in the other, an explosion in a Utah potash mine killed 18 of 25 miners.

Udall said the small mines make up about 17 per cent of the coal mines in the United States. Department statistics show they employ about 32,000 miners out of about 167,000 miners in the entire coal industry.

Udall said "it is an unnecessary risk" to permit such mines to continue to operate outside the mandatory provisions of the law.

His recommendations would put additional teeth in mine safety regulations by changing existing provisions for correcting explosion hazards and other dangers encountered by a federal inspector.

Existing rules permit a "reasonable time" for correcting such hazards but the secretary proposes empowering federal inspectors to order immediate withdrawal of employees from an endangered mine.

He proposed also elimination of the so-called grandfather clauses from the present act, saying they have outlived their purpose of providing a transition period for mines to switch from non-permissible equipment to the use of equipment prescribed by the bureau of mines.

The fourth major change would require adequate and separate ventilation for each working section of a mine, regardless of its size.

Meanwhile, Cusper A. Nelson of the Utah Industrial Commission said it appears the blast occurred near a storage shop for mining tools, Texas Gulf said no dynamite was stored there.

It had been thought that men dynamiting through hard rock hit a pocket of methane gas. Survivors said there was a scheduled dynamiting at 4:20 p.m. Tuesday, then the fatal explosion 20 minutes later.

Top men of the U.S. Bureau of Mines and agencies of the State of Utah started preliminary investigations Friday while people in this little mining town of 6,500 tried to help the widows and their families.

Members of 54 civic and church organizations in the community started a fund and sent volunteers door to door with fruit jars to collect money.

A Chamber of Commerce official said the goal is to collect at least $5,000 for the immediate cash needs of families of the dead miners.

Utah Mine Closed For Investigation

MOAB, Utah (AP)—The $40-million Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. potash mine was ordered closed indefinitely Friday, pending a joint state-federal investigation of an underground explosion that killed 18 men.

Pockets of carbon monoxide gas still remained deep in the 3,000-foot tunnels and crews had to abandon temporarily efforts to recover the body of the last victim.

Only two of the seven survivors were still in the hospital and both were in good condition. Four of the five men rescued Thursday night, after being trapped 49 hours, spent the night at home.

The bodies of 17 men, disfigured beyond recognition, still lay under green canvas covers on the floor of a downtown garage, used as a temporary morgue.

The investigation will start Labor Day and could take weeks to complete. It will start with an underground study of the explosion area if conditions in the tunnels are safe.

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP)—A rescue worker went down 300 feet underground Friday night into the Henry Thorne-David Fellin cubicle but found no trace of the third missing miner, Louis Bova.

Fellin and Thorne were rescued last Tuesday after 14 days. They and Bova were trapped at 9 a.m. Aug. 13 after a cave-in at a mine at nearby Shepperton.

Andy Drobitzko, 35, of Pottsville, went down the 18-inch shaft through which Thorne and Fellin were hauled to safety. Like them, he was transported in an open safety harness, which looks like a parachute rig.

As soon as Drobitzko reached the surface and made his report, the three drilling rigs resumed attempts to sink shafts in the direction where Bova was believed to be trapped. They had been quiet — along with everything else except a generator supplying power for electric light — while Drobitzko went down.

Earlier Friday a TV camera was lowered into the cubicle and a picture showed what appeared to be a body.

"What appeared to be the image of a man was the remains of the plug that had been used to close up the 12-inch hole before they widened it into 18 inches and brought Fellin and Thorne to the surface," Drobitzko said.

"My inspection of the area where Fellin and Thorne had been, indicated that it would have been impossible to tunnel from there to where Bova might be entombed on the opposite side of the slope," Drobitzko added.

Drobitzko volunteered to go down and inspect the chamber.

Drobitzko, a man of about 5 feet 7, started down at 8:32 p.m. It took about 15 minutes to haul Thorne to the surface early last Tuesday morning and Fellin about 8 minutes.

Drobitzko went down in about 20 minutes and came up 15 minutes later.

H. B. Charnbury, state mines secretary, said that a 22-inch hole already started east of the Fellin-Thorne escape hatch had gone past the 150-foot mark and would be driven to the bottom in the continuing search for Bova.

The report of the object resembling a body had touched off speculation that Bova might be in the chamber.

An air of mystery grew around the descent. The man who was going down was not named by rescue officials, who said he would be identified only when he returned to the surface.

He was lowered into the shaft by about a dozen men, holding onto a stout rope. Another two dozen men manned three separate safety lines — which could take up the slack in case the main rope broke. He was lowered a few feet at a time.

Suspense hung over the crowd, who were kept back about 100 feet from the hole.

All eyes were fixed on the 20-foot-high hoist, to which the rope was attached to provide additional leverage for the men hauling it. The only sound was the generator providing power for electric lights.

As Drobitzko was being lowered, his voice could be heard faintly coming into the communications tent:

"Slowly, keep it coming, keep it coming, slowly, slowly, hold it. Now slowly . . ."

He reached bottom at 8:52 p.m. The men on the surface still held the lines. He was back on the surface 15 minutes later.

There was no immediate comment from Fellin and Thorne, who are recuperating in the Hazleton State General Hospital where they had undergone a series of medical tests Friday.

Schuylkill County Dist. Atty. Harry Lightstone reached the mine, located at nearby Shepperton, Friday afternoon. He said he came here "in the light of these puzzling developments."

Shepperton is in adjoining Schuylkill County.

H. B. Charnbury, state secretary of mines who has directed the rescue operations, announced the decision to send a man down after the television camera, sent into the chamber, relayed pictures of an object that appeared — even though blurry and some distance from the camera — to be that of a human form seated and wearing a helmet.

Thorne, 28, and Fellin, 58, were rescued early Tuesday, being hauled to the surface in an open safety harness through an 18-inch escape hole after rescue efforts that riveted national attention on the mine for 10 days.

Once up, they expressed belief that Bova, 51, probably was still alive. They had said the same thing from the time a tiny six-inch lifeline hole — through which they received food and supplies — reached them Aug. 18 at a time all three men had been virtually given up for dead.

Bova may have had a lunch bucket with him when trapped, but otherwise presumably has had no food. There is sulphur water in the mine, and Thorne and Fellin drank that during the first five days. Thorne and Fellin reported they had been in contact with Bova for some days after the cave-in.

Charnbury, in announcing the decision to send a man down the Thorne-Fellin rescue shaft, said the TV camera showed "what appears to be a man's body."

Newsmen, looking at the object on the TV monitor screen, said it appeared to be a seated human form wearing a miner's helmet. Technicians said a sharper image had been obtained earlier and showed the figure's outline more clearly.

The figure appeared to be crouched against a wall, facing the camera.

Fellin and Thorne, both patients in the state hospital at Hazleton, were not available for comment.

Scriptures: Genesis 28-31

Fleeing from Esau's wrath, Jacob went to Haran to the house of Laban, his uncle. He fell in love with Rachel, Laban's daughter, and served Laban seven years for her.—Genesis 29.

Jacob prospered there, but dissension arose between him and Laban, so he mounted his family on camels and drove his flocks before him, returning to Canaan.—Genesis 30-31.

En route, Jacob learned that Esau approached with 400 men. Afraid, he sent messengers. That night God showed him His power by sending an angel who wrestled with him.—Genesis 32.

Jacob then bowed with humility as Esau approached. Esau surprised him by running to meet him, and the two embraced and wept.—Genesis 33. GOLDEN TEXT: 1 Peter 5:6.

Laity Is A Robust Force In East's Orthodox Church

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

The rank-and-file laity is a robust force in Eastern Orthodox churches.

And sometimes a temperamental one.

"Laymen sometimes stand up and verbally slug it out with the clergy over a parish issue," said Earnest A. Villas, director of the Department of the Laity of the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of the Americas.

Except on matters of doctrine and the ministry, he said, clergy and laymen have an equal voice and vote.

This is a seldom recognized aspect of Orthodoxy, whose theology is close to that of Roman Catholicism, but whose church administrative structure in many ways resembles that of Protestantism.

At the same time, Villas said, there is a "tremendous humility and spiritual discipline" among Orthodox believers that unites them with their priests and bishops as the source of religious guidance and direction.

"We look on our spiritual leaders as representatives of Christ on earth," Villas added.

Dramatizing both its cohesiveness and zeal, Eastern Orthodoxy this Saturday is holding a huge religious-cultural festival in Pittsburgh's Civic Arena, with an attendance of more than 10,000 expected.

Sponsored by lay organizations, the event is unprecedented. Never before have the leaders and members of the seven major branches of Orthodoxy in this country joined in a mass, concerted demonstration of their faith.

Altogether, there are about 6 million Orthodox members in this country in 1,500 parishes, or congregations.

Is The Church Used As A Trojan Horse?

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Differences arose at an international Christian gathering Wednesday over whether churches in the Soviet orbit are sometimes used to promote Communist ideology.

The church "may be used as a Trojan Horse," a West German, Dr. Klaus von Bismarck, said. He added that this "happens on both sides." In the West and in the Communist East.

Eastern Europeans strongly disputed it. "This is not so," said Archbishop Vitaly Borovoy, Russian Orthodox churchman from Leningrad.

The debate, couched in tempered language and tone, brought out underlying tensions at the meeting of the Central Committee of the World Council of Churches.

The council includes most major Protestant, Anglican, Old Catholic and Eastern Orthodox churches on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

The flurry of discussion came after Dr. Von Bismarck, of Cologne, asserted that churches, in both Western and Communist lands, at times confuse Christianity with state ideologies.

In Communist-ruled lands, he said, the Gospel commandments are sometimes "selectively confused with the postulates of a 'progressive' theory of society."

"This temptation is just as bad as when Christian churches allow themselves to be harnessed to nationalistic aims under cover of a Christian flag."

Taking exception to the implications about Eastern-bloc churches was Bishop Tibor Bartha, of Debrecen, Hungary, representing the Reformed Church of Hungary.

"It is clear that the church cannot adopt Communist ideology," he said.

Today's Lesson:

Surrender At Peniel

We continue this week with the life of Jacob, and we see him here being led more and more closely to God's will.

Fleeing Esau's wrath, and following Isaac's orders, Jacob returns to the land of his relatives and forebears. As Isaac himself had found his beloved Rebekah there, so his son finds his beloved there, too—Rachel, the younger daughter of his uncle, Laban.

Haran was the place farthest north in the lives of the patriarchs. The district lay in northern Mesopotamia; the town, southeast of Edessa.

The name means "road," probably derived from the fact that in that town the trade routes from Assyria, Babylonia and Media met, proceeding by one road from there to the coast of Cilicia.

The Assyrians regarded it as a strategic post of vital importance, as well as a commercial center. In Greek and Roman times it was called Carrae; there Crassus was slain by the Parthians, and later, Caracalla by the Macrinus' troops. By the 14th century A.D. it was in ruins.

There Jacob, who had tricked his father regarding his blessing, is in turn tricked by Laban when he gives him Leah instead of Rachel.

This treacherous nature of Laban's apparently plagued Jacob all the time he was in Haran, until he left the area. After Laban pursues Jacob he becomes humiliated and realizes it would be best for him to maintain peace with his increasingly powerful son-in-law.

So at the end of Chapter 31 we come to what is known as the "Mizpah Benediction" — "The Lord watch between me and thee when we are absent one from another." The name comes from "mizpah," watch-tower.

In the next chapter we come to the first full prayer recorded in the Bible, as Jacob falls to his knees to ask God for deliverance from Esau. It is one of true humility and entreaty. Yet Jacob still does not trust completely in God's will and ability to deliver him, for he resorts again to his own ingenious mind and sends presents ahead to appease Esau.

It is at Peniel, on what is now called the Blue River (Wady Zerka), which flows into the Jordan midway between the Sea of Galilee and the Dead Sea, that Jacob is finally convinced of God's power. God apparently felt that if Jacob wrestled the land of Palestine from Esau by his own trickery, he would never become a true child of God. So he sent an angel, seemingly a man, to wrestle with Jacob and break his spirit of self-sufficiency.

After an all-night scuffle, the stranger simply puts out his hand, and with a single touch puts Jacob's thigh out of joint. Jacob's realization of what has happened is manifest in his request for a blessing, and confirmed by the blessing itself, which changes his name from "supplanter" to "a prince with God" (Israel). Jacob also calls the place Peniel, recording his realization, for "Peniel" means "face of God."

Jacob's eventual return to Bethel, the place he had promised to dwell, was brought on by the shame he felt over the crime his sons committed.

Gems Of Thoughts

HUMILITY

I believe the first test of a truly great man is his humility.

John Ruskin

By humility I mean not the abjectness of a base mind, but a prudent care not to overvalue ourselves.

Nathaniel Crew

Self-knowledge, humility, and love are divine strength.

Mary Baker Eddy

Humbleness is always grace; always dignity.

James Russell Lowell

Sense shines with a double lustre when set in humility.

JUST A MOMENT

Teacher—"Good morning class, we shall now start our day with a moment for inspirational thinking."

The pupils close their eyes and settle back in their seats to contemplate something good.

John A.'s mind is a complete blank. He stayed up too late watching TV.—He takes this opportunity to catch up on a little more sleep.

Bertha D.—"How long is a moment? I'll just get to thinking of something nice when time will be up, so I'll just hope for the day to go fast."

Gloria S.—"Bill was cute last night. Golly I hope he asks me out soon again. He is divine!"

Paul G.—"Hope that science test isn't scheduled for today."

Frank L.—"It seems creepy in here, sitting with 35 kids and nobody saying 'nutten'."

Alice B.—"Now I lay me down to sleep—aw, that's kid stuff prayers! How does one pray?"

Joe J.—"Oh Lord! Let's not have jello again for lunch!"

Susan P.—"Seventy-six, seventy seven, seventy—Hey, it's over a minute!"

Lloyd W.—"Susan sure is a dish, wonder if her hair would turn dark if she ever got caught in the rain?"

Bren A.—"Try to think of a poem—lets see—

I saw God wash the world last night.

Ah, would He had washed me As clean of all my dust and dirt As that old white birch tree." (Stidger)

Teacher—"Now that we all have inspired ourselves with our beautiful thoughts we shall start the school day after we read ten verses from The Declaration of Independence."

And so another day begins in our modern schools. The law of the land has decreed that the Bible may not be used for opening exercises. The will of the few has been imposed upon the many, and God is no longer welcome! "The hell hath said in his heart, there is no God."

Psalm 141

Witnesses Prepare For Three-Day Event

"Feed My Little Sheep" is the theme woven through the entire program of Jehovah's Witnesses at their three-day assembly to be held at the Broughal School in Bethlehem next weekend, Sept. 6-8, Stephen F. Bortlik, presiding minister of the East Stroudsburg congregation, announced last night.

The program will begin at 6:45 p.m. Friday with songs and experiences. The welcome address by D. J. Thomas will be followed by the ministry school, where the art of teaching to "feed my little sheep" will be emphasized to the students. The ministry-development class at 8:15 p.m. under the direction of R. B. Palms, circuit supervisor, will demonstrate to ministers how to "Hold Fast Your Hope to the Sheep."

At 9 a.m. Saturday, ministers will hear and have demonstrated "Search for the Sheeplike ones," after which delegates will make public calls on householders to personally invite the "sheeplike ones" to attend the sessions.

The session in the afternoon will open at 1:30 p.m. D. J. Thomas will speak on "Dedication and Baptism" and candidates will proceed to the immersion pool, located in the basement of the Kingdom Hall, 1419 Center St. The night program will begin at 6:45 with songs and experiences after which the delegates will hear D. J. Thomas speak on "Examining Our Ministry." R. B. Palms will then introduce ministers who give full time to the ministry, engaging in secular work only to sustain them in their preaching as did the early Christian ministers. The remainder of the evening program will demonstrate how "sheeplike ones" can be skillfully fed.

At 9 a.m. Sunday a model sermon will be given with the theme "Effectively Feed Sheeplike Ones" based upon Psalm 78:72.

At 3 p.m. the address "The Bible Triumphs in a Scientific World" will be the featured talk of the assembly. At 4:30 p.m. a summary of the Watchtower article "Surviving Through Faith" and two concluding feature sermons, "Speaking the Truth Unites" and "Willingly Expend Your Ministry," will bring this convention to a close.

County GOP, Dems Report July 30 Campaign Expenses

STROUDSBURG — Republican and Democratic treasurers of campaign committees for the July 30 special election have filed financial statements with the Monroe County Board of Election as required by law.

Fred B. Rooney, Democratic candidate, defeated Robert C. Bartlett, Republican candidate in the special election to fill the 15th Congressional district vacancy in the U.S. House of Representatives, created by the death of Francis E. Walter.

Olaf J. Pedersen, treasurer of the Bartlett to Congress Committee filed his report yesterday at 3:50 p.m., 40 minutes before the office closed at 4:30 p.m. yesterday, the last legal day for filing.

His report showed total receipts of $2,285, of which $900 was received from the Republican State Committee. The remaining was received from local donations.

Pedersen's report showed expenditures of $2,464.01. This is $179.01 more than the committee received. His report also noted that there were no outstanding or unpaid bills.

Democratic Accounts

Three Democratic committees filed accounts.

J. Nelson Westbrook, treasurer of Monroe County Democratic Committee, Fred Rooney for Congress, reported receiving $1,352.24. Of this amount $4,200 was from the Pennsylvania State Democratic Committee and the remainder from local contributions.

The $4,200 donated by the Democratic state committee is seven times more than the $600 contributed to the Republican drive by the Republican State Committee.

His report indicated that the committee's expenditures were equal to the receipts.

Another Democratic committee treasurer, Warren F. Loney of the Rooney For Congress Stroudsburg headquarters, filed his report. It shows receipts of $561.15 and expenditures in the same amount. All receipts were from local donations.

T. O. McCool Sr., treasurer of the Democrats for Bartlett committee filed a report showing no receipts and no expenditures.

Northampton County Dems

In Northampton County the Democrats reported expenditures of $30,445.17 for the special congressional election.

Gus P. Verona, who filed the report as treasurer of the County Democratic Committee, listed a loan of $10,000 in the report. The largest contribution to the committee was $12,500 from the State Democratic Committee.

Although Verona's money was listed as a loan under the contributions column, there was nothing entered under the unpaid bills and obligations column.

Contributions ranged from $1 to $12,500. Most of the expenses were for workers and transportation. The workers received between $15 and $25.

Pocono Playhouse Presents 'Guys And Dolls' Tuesday

MOUNTAINHOME—The hit musical "Guys and Dolls" begins a two-week run at the Pocono Playhouse in Mountainhome beginning Tuesday evening, Sept. 3. The play will run through Sunday, Sept. 15.

Appearing in the starring role will be Norwood Smith, Smith, a baritone, has appeared in some of Broadway's longest running musicals.

Included among his accomplishments are leading role in "Show Boat," "Night in Venice," "Can Can," "Kismet," and "Silk Stockings."

He also succeeded Robert Alda in "Guys and Dolls" on Broadway and played for more than 800 performances with the musical on tour.

"Guys and Dolls" is a fast-paced musical by Joe Swerling and Abe Burrows. It is based on a story by Damon Runyon. It recaptures life on the Great White Way as it was once lived.

Intermingled with the story of romance, horse players and cabaret girls is exciting music and dancing.

"If I Were a Bell," "I'll Know" and "Take Back Your Mink" are among the Frank Loesser songs heard in "Guys and Dolls." Loesser is one of the most successful songwriters on Broadway today.

Featured players in the all-Broadway cast supporting Smith are Tim Herbert, Anne Lang, Renee Orr, Oogie Small and a bevy of singers and dancers.

Two extra performances of "Guys and Dolls" are scheduled Sunday, Sept. 8 and Sunday, Sept. 15 at 4:00 p. m.

Highway Death Facts

With Labor Day weekend in full swing, we hear and read again statistics about how many people will be killed in automobile accidents. The National Safety Council says it will be between 430 and 520.

But what does that mean to you—the average driver who will probably not get killed. Very little probably.

Except when a tragic accident like that on the July 4 weekend on Rt. 209 kills half of a family and an unborn child. Then we are shocked into the realization that an automobile is a dangerous weapon. But we do not know what to do about it.

We have accident statistics but we do not have accident facts.

We often do not know precisely what caused an automobile accident.

An excellent article in the September issue of Redbook magazine attacks this problem. It asks, "Why do we devote the least money, least research and least intelligent concern to the greatest cause of death among young people and their children in this country?"

People often feel that it is more dangerous to travel in an airplane than it is to drive an automobile.

But the facts are significantly the reverse. As the article says, "The automobile, not the airplane is the main killer and blinder and amputator and mangler and paralyzer in the United States. It kills more children aged one to 14 than any disease. It kills more young people from 15 to 24 than all diseases."

In spite of these facts, a Congressional Health and Safety committee reported last year that $500,000 is spent on preventative research for every accidental death in aviation. The Redbook article claims that the automotive industry, government and safety agencies spend far less.

But with 40,000 people killed on the highways in 1962, the country, the government, the safety councils, and most of all the automotive industry should be spending a lot more to find out what causes accidents and how to prevent them.

Some surprising results were turned up by a Harvard University research team, working with an $809,820 five-year grant.

It got to the scenes of accidents before cars and bodies were removed and they investigated the circumstances in more detail than police could possibly do.

The research team discovered that drinking and speeding, the usual scapegoats, were not the major causes of automobile deaths. It reported that faulty car maintenance and the unsafe construction of automobiles were to blame for a large majority of the deaths.

Worn out tires which finally burst, worn out brakes which fail at a fatal moment, broken brake fluid tubes, missing or broken cotter pins in the steering system—these and other weaknesses in the cars themselves were often to blame.

The Harvard study's second major conclusion was that automobiles can and must be built with more safety features.

Methods for mass producing padded interiors, especially dashboards, roofs that will not cave in, hydraulic bumpers and bumper resistant side panels exist. But the automotive industry has resisted to the last possible moment building safer cars.

It was only under great pressure from laws passed in a number of states that the industry agreed recently to put front seat safety belts in all new cars after Jan. 1, 1964.

When accident research proved that you are five times more likely to be killed if you are thrown out of a car than if you are held inside, the industry did install safety latches—a relatively inexpensive improvement.

But accident research was needed first. A lot more research is needed into emotional, environmental and other factors which combine to produce a fatal highway accident.

And a public outcry is needed to force the car manufacturers to build the safest cars they already know how to build.

End-Of-Summer Harvest . . . Bumper-To-Bumper Crop!

Stroudsburg Lawyer's View

Constitutional Problems Of Civil Rights Bill

(In a recent speech to the Rotary Club of Stroudsburg, Attorney Arlington Williams of Stroudsburg discussed his hobby—the U.S. Constitution. The Daily Record asked him to expand his remarks on the constitutional difficulties raised by the Civil Rights Bill now before Congress.)

By Arlington Williams

Massive support has been generated for the Civil Rights Bill now before the Congress. The law appears to be generally acceptable to Congress. Only the public accommodations part of the bill seems to be in danger of rejection.

Passage of the proposed law will aid but will not itself eliminate all discrimination and produce full equality for all races and colors.

We ought to be conscious of the truth that true equality between the races will only be fully realized when we discard race prejudices and voluntarily practice the principles of equality the law seeks to have us do by compulsion.

Equality born out of compulsion is never as satisfactory or as fully effective as equality rooted in the heart and conscience of man.

There is serious doubt that Congress has constitutional power to enact a public accommodations law. There are precedents here the legal problems involved in the enactment of such a law at the federal level.

Pennsylvania Law

It is well to state at the outset that passage of the law will have little direct effect on the Pennsylvania citizen since we have had a civil rights law since 1939 which provides in part as follows:

"All persons within the jurisdiction of this commonwealth shall be entitled to the full and equal accommodations, advantages, facilities and privileges of any public places of accommodation, resort or amusement, subject only to the conditions and limitations established by law and applicable to all persons alike."

The act imposes penalties and imprisonment for its violators and the Pennsylvania Supreme Court has ruled that a person who suffers discrimination by reason of race, color or creed may recover damages in a civil action and obtain injunctive relief.

State legislation on public accommodations has the advantage over federal legislation in that the constitutional power of the state to enact such legislation is not disputed.

In contrast with state power, Congress may only enact such laws as the constitution either explicitly or by implication permits. All power not granted to Congress or prohibited to the states, is reserved to the states and the people by the express terms of the Tenth Amendment.

Public Accommodations Law. The pertinent question then is what power or powers granted by the federal constitution, empowers Congress to enact a public accommodations law restricting the behavior of individuals as well as placing restraints on state action?

Some proponents of the law assert that the Fourteenth Amendment gives Congress such power. The applicable portion of the Amendment reads as follows:

"No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

The Supreme Court has held that the Fourteenth Amendment does not give Congress the power to regulate interstate commerce. It states that all these places must give equal service if their services are provided "to a substantial degree of interstate travelers."

Who will decide for certain what is "a substantial degree?"

A strong public accommodations law is needed. The Congress itself should pass a strong, clear law on the subject, and not a weak law which the Supreme Court has to change and strengthen.

ities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law; nor deny to any person the equal protection of the laws."

The Attorney General hesitates to stand on the language of this amendment alone due to a decision of the United States Supreme Court in 1883 striking down the public accommodations law passed by Congress in 1875 to secure equal treatment of colored persons with white persons in all hotels, theaters, railroad cars, steam boats and other public places.

The court held the 1875 law unconstitutional saying that the Fourteenth Amendment was a restraint against state action only and did not protect the Negro against discrimination practiced by individuals.

This ruling until changed is the law of the land. It was affirmed as late as 1952 by a federal district court decision which the United States Supreme Court refused to hear on appeal.

Only Prohibits States

The language of this amendment is clear. It says "No state shall." It would strain the plain language of the amendment for the court to apply its prohibitions against individuals or to declare that it grants Congress the powers to legislate civil rights against individuals.

Many believe that the present membership of the court is liberal in tendency and that it will reverse the 1883 ruling and hold the Congress now has the power to do what the court has heretofore said it can not do.

They base their belief upon the fact that in 1964 in the school segregation cases, the court reversed an 1886 decision of the court and abolished segregation in the public schools. There is, however, a sharp distinction between the school cases and the civil rights legislation.

In the school cases, the discrimination was practiced and directed by the state. What the court really did in the school cases was to redefine the meaning of "Equality." The 1886 case said the requirement of equality was satisfied if "separate but equal" facilities were afforded the negro.

The 1964 decision said that "separate but equal" no longer satisfied the requirement of equality guaranteed by the constitution.

The court has undoubtedly jurisdiction to restrain a state from engaging in discriminatory acts prohibited by the federal constitution. To hold that the court has similar jurisdiction over individuals would be a decided demarcation from existing court decisions.

For this reason, the Attorney General seeks another source of power in the constitution to warrant Congressional action.

Commerce Clause

He asserts that such power is vested in the Congress by reason of its constitutional right to regulate interstate commerce.

Interstate commerce is concerned with the movement of goods and persons between the states. The explicitly granted powers of the constitution remain unchanged since the court held the civil rights law of 1875 unconstitutional. The implied powers, however, have been greatly broadened by court decisions.

In the civil rights area, the court has to this date held that the commerce clause authorized federal legislation against "Jim Crow laws" involving interstate transportation.

The pertinent question is whether the court will now say that that commerce clause is so flexible of interpretation that it is applicable to hotels, motels and restaurants which operate solely within the confines of a state.

If the court applies such flexibility of interpretation to the commerce clause, it will obliterate all distinction between federal and state control over commerce.

Such a decision will effectively create vast federal power at the expense of the constitutional right of local self-government. It will impinge on the rights of the states reserved to them by the Tenth Amendment to the constitution.

Clear Definition Needed. Congress, if it enacts the legislation limiting its operation to interstate commerce, should define clearly what commerce is within the purview of the act.

If Congress fails to do this, we will witness extensive litigation over the definition of interstate commerce. The tensions fomented by so many law suits may stimulate the very racial unrest the law seeks to alleviate.

The suggestion of Governor Scranton that the law be made applicable only to such commerce as operates under a government license has merit. A license is a privilege and not an absolute right.

The government in granting a privilege may state the conditions under which the privilege is granted. Limiting the operation of the act in such manner enhances the likelihood that it will withstand an attack on its constitutionality.

The commerce clause was intended to regulate commerce, not serve as a springboard to enact civil rights legislation.

We ought not to distort either the Fourteenth Amendment or the commerce clause and cause them to mean what the framers of the constitution never intended them to mean.

Many will disagree with this viewpoint. They are impatient with the slowness of political solutions of our ills. They want quick action and they see nothing wrong in resorting to solutions by having the courts, by a new flexibility of interpretation, change what has been the law of the land.

Not Court Responsibility. Mr. Justice Harlan, in a recent speech to the American Bar Association, rejected the claim that legislative and social questions should be left to the courts for solution.

He warned that the courts should not be looked upon as the forum in which all national ills may be cured.

He points out that such a viewpoint if adopted would lead to the substantial transfer of legislative powers to the court, a function, he says, judges are ill-suited to perform.

He asserts such a viewpoint is inconsistent with the principles of American democratic society and threatens the integrity of the court itself.

He speaks out against departure from our traditional constitutional precepts and any shortcutting of the processes of change which the constitution establishes.

A possible way in which the court may exercise proper judicial restraint and yet find constitutional authority for a public accommodations law is to reject

ACA Attacks 'Deceitful Lies' In Rooney Ad

Editor, The Daily Record:

During the height of the special election campaign for the office of Representative to the United States Congress for the 15th District of Pennsylvania, an advertisement appeared in major newspapers which was signed by "The four County Business and Professional Men's Committee for Rooney for Congress, Arnold Falk, Chairman and Director, Seymour Rosenstein, Treasurer," and entitled "This is not a SMEAR!"

We are aware that sincere and honest men are often prevailed upon by unscrupulous politicians to lend their respected names unwittingly to insidious political strategy.

ACA categorically denies the statements made against it in the advertisement which contained a mixture of deceitful lies and implications.

As you may or may not know ACA has been attacked on the floor of the Congress of the United States by a group of self-styled liberals in the Congressional sanctuary providing immunity to legal reprisals for libelous statements.

In reply to the intemperate attack on ACA, Congressman James A. Haley, Democrat of Florida stated:

"Why, Mr. Speaker this little group of our colleagues has even resorted to the tactic of 'guilt by association' in asserting that Americans for Constitutional Action is an extremist organization of the rightwing's lunatic fringe—and I quote last Monday's speakers—on the sole ground that 3 or 4, or perhaps 8 to 10, of the organization's thousands of supporters have been identified with other organizations which are regarded by some as being on the extreme right."

"I know of nothing in our Constitution, nor in our system of justice which provides for the conviction of any individual or any group of individuals on grounds of association with the guilty."

"I may add that I know of no group that can be more outraged by the doctrine of 'guilt by association' than our liberal element—when that doctrine strikes at one of their own number."

"I suspect that we have here another proof of the old truism that it makes a difference whose foot the shoe pinches, or whose ox is goaded."

"To say that, because somebody in the John Birch Society also is a supporter of Americans for Constitutional Action, or the Gerald L. K. Smith endorses some of the principles of Americans for Constitutional Action, this organization becomes an enemy of our Constitution, or our form of government is absurd."

I have also enclosed a speech delivered on the floor of the United States Senate by the Honorable Earl Mundt.

We of course recognize that your paper cannot control campaign tactics, however we thought that you might be interested in ACA's position.

Arab Leaders Should Absorb Refugees

Editor, The Daily Record:

Dr. Burhan Hammud, chief of the United Nations section of the Arab States Delegations Office, in his recent speech before the Stroudsburg Rotary Club, shed crocodile tears over the plight of the Arab refugees.

Let us examine the facts. The Jews did not invade Palestine nor did they drive the Arabs out. The United Nations, with deliberate consideration of the history of the Jewish people, the original inhabitants of Palestine, created the State of Israel. The Arabs, in attacking the fledgling Israel, violated the United Nations Charter, which forbids the use of force to settle international disputes.

The Arab chieftains gave orders to the Arabs in Palestine to leave the country so that the Arab military forces would be free, so they thought, to destroy Israel. The Arabs were defeated.

And now, the Arab leaders, playing a "heads I win, tails you lose" game, demand that Israel take the refugees back. Those Arabs who choose to remain in Israel enjoy religious, educational and political freedom.

If the Arab leaders were sincere in their solicitude about the refugees they would absorb them in the vast lands at their disposal. In fact, the United Nations, who favors this humanitarian solution, is willing to underwrite the cost of such a project.

Even Israel, though not obliged to in view of the circumstances mentioned above, offers to contribute to the expense.

But the Arab leaders do not want their own refugees whom they brought to their present plight. But they will send a Dr. Hammud through our country to throw a propaganda smoke screen about the real issue—Arab heartlessness to their own people.

Since you gave quite extensive coverage to Dr. Hammud's talk before the Stroudsburg Rotary Club, I trust that you will give space in your paper to this rejoinder.

DEAR ABBY: I have lived with my "husband" for over 25 years, but we have never been legally married. We have grown children who think we are married. My "husband" and I can't get along with each other any more and we would like to get rid of each other. I've been true blue all these years, but he sure hasn't. How can we make this separation legal? Do we need a divorce if we have never been married? How can we separate quietly without disgracing our children?

Marine Band Concert Aids Exchange Club Youth Fund

EAST STROUDSBURG — The spit and polish of the U.S. Marine Band will be on display Sept. 16 at 8:15 p.m. in the East Stroudsburg High School auditorium.

All proceeds from the concert will help finance the Exchange Club's youth fund program. The youth fund is an educational and recreation program designed to help deserving youths in the Stroudsburg area. Among the club's projects are sponsoring of a yearly scholarship fund and outfitting a little league team.

The Marine musicians have been performed before audiences that have included kings and queens, princes and princesses, prime ministers and shahs and other heads of state the world over.

Playing before such audiences the word "protocol" has become as important to the Marine bandmen as the command "dress right dress." Performing for such royal audiences has led the band to play a special selection at the concert.

While playing before the king and queen of England, the band played a beautiful rendition of the British anthem. The king and queen were so pleased they visited band members to thank them personally.

The band is directed by Lt. Col. Albert Schoepper, a veteran of 29 years with the organization. Unless given special instructions by the President or secretary of state, the protocol staff from the state department merely tells Col. Schoepper who is to be entertained. The colonel selects programs for his concerts accordingly.

No protocol staff will be in evidence the night the band plays for area residents, but music lovers can be assured that the Marine band will treat them to a night of music that they will long remember.

School Menus

STROUDSBURG — The Daily Record will publish hot lunch menus of area schools as they are received. Menus are subject to change without notice by school cafeteria managers.

Pleasant Valley Joint Schools

Wednesday: Barbecue on a roll.

Plan Work On Temple Campus

HARRISBURG (AP)—An unofficial low bid of $35,000 was received by the General State Authority Wednesday for demolition work on the campus of Temple University in Philadelphia.

The bid was submitted by Robert Hawthorne, Inc., Philadelphia.

The project calls for demolition of residential and commercial properties so that a new library building can be constructed on the site.

buttered corn, tossed salad, apricots, and milk.

Thursday: Meatloaf, gravy, mashed potatoes, creamed cabbage, bread, butter, pudding, and milk.

Friday: Toasted cheese sandwich, potato salad, buttered peas, pineapple, and milk.

Poccono Mountain Joint Schools

The menu for the first day, Wednesday, will be barbecue on a bun, potato salad, mixed salad, cherry cobbler, and milk.

The cost of the meals will be the same this year as they were last year — students, 30 cents; teachers, 40 cents.

Stroud Union Schools

Sept. 4-6

Wednesday: Steak sandwich, buttered peas, peaches, and milk.

Thursday: Cheeseburger, buttered green beans, pineapple, and milk.

Friday: Baked fish, buttered potatoes, sliced tomatoes, bread, butter, jello with topping, and milk.

West End Fair Horse Show Successful Despite Rain

GILBERT — Rain slowed the pace a bit, but in spite of bad weather the West End Fair open horse show was reported successful. A final day crowd of 3,000 attended the fair Thursday.

First place winners in open classes were:

Model stock horse event, Ken Sowers of Bartonsville; riding Red Fire; Western trail horse event, Heather Hendry from Stroudsburg, RD 5, on Tommy Wrangler; junior hunting seat horsemanship, Cris Edwards from Great Meadows, N. J.

Junior stock saddle seat equitation, Heather Hendry; green working hunters, Suzanne Spinner from East Stroudsburg, on Dutchess; junior western pleasure horse, Nancy Collins of Waverly, Pa. on Squaw Ballerina.

Also open jumpers, Sandy Daughan of Stroudsburg, on camouflage; western trail horse, Kitchie Little of Waverly, Pa., riding Squaw Ballerina; saddle seat equitation, Grace Husack from Walmuttort, Pa. on Secret Storm.

Costume class, three winners, Linda McGarvey of Gilbert, on Golden Boy, Heather Hendry and Suzan Jarrett from Stroudsburg, on Egyptian Sun; Pole Bending, Charles Getz from Albrightsville, Pa., riding Lady; bridge path or park hacks, Joseph Hagerman from Stroudsburg, on Tick Toe.

And Western stock horse, Grace Husack; break and out, Suzan Jarrett; western pleasure, Kitchie Little; barrel racing, Bob Bechtel from Stroudsburg, riding Tom Dooley. Class 17, for open jumpers was cancelled.

Boy Buys Family Tickets For Philadelphia Concert

STROUDSBURG — At first glance Gregory Turn, 15, of Bushkill, looks like any ordinary 15 year old boy. But Gregory is not.

Greg just paid $30 for four tickets to hear the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra. He is planning to take his entire family to hear and enjoy the concert, and he is willing to use a good portion of his summer savings for the opportunity.

Gregory, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Turn, is very grateful to be able to go and listen to what he calls "An evening of cultural music."

He worked during the summer as a stock boy in his father's general store. During the school term Greg is a tenth grade student at East Stroudsburg High School, where he plays the tuba in the school band.

Gregory was urged to attend the concert by his music instructor, Robert Zellner, who calls the coming concert, "A wonderful opportunity for children to hear the world's finest music." Zellner is head of the East Stroudsburg Joint High School Music Department.

Evidently Greg is not the only lover of fine music in Monroe County. Marcia Clapp, director of the Pocono Art Center, sponsors of the Sept. 13 event, reports a brisk ticket sale.

Good music attracts people from all walks of life. One day recently when the chauffeur-driven cars were delivering passengers to the Pocono Arts Center to purchase tickets, a workman came in after work to buy tickets for himself and his wife. The man said, "My wife and I just love good music."

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Sidelights to the news are often as interesting as the news itself. For instance, the day after Regina O'Neill's William Penn Treaty china was sold, she got a letter from the curator of the Williamsburg, Va., Restoration, telling her things she'd never known about the china herself.

For instance, the initials "T.F." on the back stand for Thomas Green, of Church Green, Staffordshire. Green is listed as the chief maker of transfer prints of American views, historical incidents and portraits after 1864, and the prints have been avidly sought after in America.

Anyway, she's very happy that the man who bought them appreciates their beauty and is going to keep them — in his Williamsburg room at his home in Allentown, incidentally. The man himself, Stanley Herber, was born with the collecting instinct, he admitted while he was busily wrapping his purchases at the sale.

As a child living in the country, he collected old rags from his neighbors — a bit of blanket here, part of a coat there, and had them made into a friendship rug with the names of the original owners on each piece.

Speaking of collecting, Mrs. Arthur Rugh of Swiftwater will be collecting letters from all over the world as her children scatter to the four corners. A lifelong traveler herself, for 37 years, she was in New York last week to see grandson, Bill Rugh and his wife and their young son off on the Gripsholm for Germany where he will be studying "Radio Activity in Germany" for a Ph.D. thesis. Mrs. Rugh couldn't understand why the trip was going to take 10 days when she used to make it by ship in four or five.

Her son Douglas and his wife are flying to Beirut, Lebanon, today leaving at 8 p.m. and arriving at 4 p.m. tomorrow. Meanwhile, her daughter's son, Douglas Price and his wife, are going to be teaching in Miles College, a Negro college in Birmingham, Ala., this year, and her granddaughter, Moll Rugh, is going with the Peace Corps to Ghana in Africa for two years. Never a dull moment with the Rugh's — or if she finds one she makes homemade hints for the Daily Record staff.

Meanwhile, most of us aren't going anywhere this weekend because we'll be the visited not the visitors. Among the well-known visitors to the Daily Record yesterday were David Ottaway, bringing his bride, Maria, back from Milan and ready to introduce her to friends at Buck Hill this weekend. She's even prettier than her pictures. They'll both be doing graduate work in New York this fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Edmond Datesman (Patti Studio)

Diane Kay Williams Bride In Hamilton Square Church

Stroudsburg—Miss Diane Kay Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Williams, of Stroudsburg, RD 4, became the bride of Gerald Edmond Datesman, of Bangor, at 3 p. m. Aug. 17 in Christ Church in Hamilton Square.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Datesman, of 32 Messinger St., Bangor.

Rev. Adan Bohner performed the ceremony in the historic church which was decorated with altar vases filled with white carnations and mums, and white bows with sprays of lilies of the valley marking the gated pews. Mrs. Velma Hartman was organist. Miss Marcella Landry, cousin of the bride, sang "Because," "I Love You Truly," and during the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of silk organza with a lace bodice and long lace sleeves. The skirt was of scalloped organza over a lace flounce. A crown of seed pearls and aurora borealis held her four-tiered veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of carnations with a white orchid center.

Mrs. Irene Williams, sister-in-law of the bride, of Saylorsburg, was matron of honor. She wore a yellow ballerina-length dress of silk organza with a sleeveless bodice with a scoop neckline, with a bell-shaped skirt with gathers held in place by little white seed pearls. She wore a circle crown of silk organza to hold a three-tiered veil and carried a cascade bouquet of orchid carnations.

The bridesmaids were Miss Sandra Landry, cousin of the bride, of Saylorsburg; Miss Carol Arnold, of Saylorsburg, RD 4. They wore orchid dresses and crowns similar to that worn by the matron of honor and carried cascade bouquets of yellow carnations.

Dawn Williams, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a floor-length gown of yellow nylon over tulle with a large bow in the back. The bodice was sleeveless and had a scoop neckline. Her crown of seed pearls held a veil of yellow tulle and she

Staples Family In Reunion At Dingmans'

Dingmans — The rolling lawn, spreading shade trees and a babbling brook provided the setting for the annual gathering of the Staples clan at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Staples at Dingmans with almost 70 adults and children present.

Adding to the pleasure for the adults was the presence of children, grandchildren and great grandchildren, even though a few of the toddlers had to be fished out of the brook at periodic intervals.

Attending were Thomas Staples, Mrs. John Repsher, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Van Vleet, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Traneue and grandchildren, Ross Traneue and Jim Steele, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Boughton and Miss Stella Boughton of Endicott, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Teetsel, also of New York and Mrs. Bertha Weaver of Bethlehem.

From Trenton, N.J., Mrs. Miriam Krollman, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Titus, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Titus, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Staples and Lulu Staples.

David Swank Jr. brought along his parents as did Ronald Heller of Haverford. The Barry Pickells attended with their two children, Craig and Kirk, of Radcliff. Diane and Bobby Staples were present with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Staples.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Staples and family, Mrs. Clarence Lesonsky, Mrs. Robert Decker and Phyllis Decker, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Kaul, Clair Blair, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Chaucey Bensley, Debbie Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. George Martin, and Terry and Sue Ellen Nauman.

Shoemaker Reunion At Weir Lake

Weir Lake—The annual Shoemaker Reunion was held Aug. 25 at Weir Lake with a buffet dinner at 1 followed by the business meeting.

Paul Shoemaker, Wind Gap was elected president; Arthur Shoemaker, first vice president; Morris Smuckley, second vice president; Roy Shoemaker, treasurer; Georgianne Shoemaker, secretary; and Carol Ann Schmauder, assistant.

Prizes were awarded to Joseph Shoemaker as the oldest man; Ruth Shoemaker as the oldest woman; Lisa Hulsizer, youngest girl; Todd Ackerman, youngest boy. Prizes were awarded the winners at games.

Present were: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shoemaker, Mrs. Harry Hagerman, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Shoemaker, Mrs. Estella Smith, Harry A. Shoemaker, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Smuckley, Mrs. Clair Halstead, Mr. and Mrs. John Ziegenfuss and sons, Brooks and Tommy, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Shoemaker and Ronnie and Sherwood; Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Shoemaker and Barry and Billy; Marion Shoemaker, Wind Gap; Thelma Kiess, Coopersburg; Mrs. Virginia Shoemaker, Georgianne, George Wooley, Pen Argyl; Mrs. William Schmauder and son, Eugene, Miss Joyce Kuckenbecker, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dennis and daughter, Gerlie May; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shoemaker and Kathy, Lynn, David Roy and Collen, Mrs. Ruth Shoemaker, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hagerman and sons, Scott and Ricky.

Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Gower and Jalene and Bruce, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hulsizer and Eric, Kevin and Lisa Ann, Mrs. Howard Blakelee, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hawk, and Douglas and Luann, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ackerman and Duane, Guy and Todd, Mr. and Mrs. John Williams, Mr. and Mrs. George Handley and children, Lori and Randy, Mr. and Mrs. Terry Shoemaker and Terry, Jr., and Mrs. George Hilland and sons, Gary and Ricky.

While there aren't many local homes available with room for five children, the house at 712 Thomas St. should provide ample room for that many and quite a few more.

On the first floor, there is a formal reception room, a large living room, a large dining room and an even larger library in addition to the kitchen. On the second floor there are six bedrooms and three baths; and on the third floor there are three

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Knorr

The Knorrs Mark 52nd Anniversary

East Stroudsburg — Mr. and Mrs. Fred Knorr of 56 Penn St., East Stroudsburg will observe their 52nd wedding anniversary on Sept. 2.

They were married in Bethlehem and have spent their entire life in the Stroudsburgs. Mr. Knorr was born Sept. 11, 1888 at White Haven. His wife, the former Cora Rinker, was born July 30, 1889 at Neola.

They have five children: Pearl Knorr of Conyngham; Mrs. Grace Smith, Stroudsburg; Mrs. Mary Wilson, East Stroudsburg; Harold of Saylorsburg; and Paul of East Stroudsburg. They have ten grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

Kindergarten Tea Precedes School Opening

East Stroudsburg — The first activity of the season for the East Stroudsburg Elementary Parent-Teachers Assn. was an informal tea for kindergarten teachers, mothers and children, held this week at the J. M. Hill School from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. on Aug. 28.

The tea was a feature of the "get-acquainted" day for the kindergarten teachers, parents and children entering school for the first time next week, and is sponsored annually by the PTA.

Serving on the committee were: Mrs. James Smith, Mrs. Theodore Myers, Mrs. James Rine, Mrs. Pauline Hope and Mrs. Earl Deik, president.

O'Neill Home Purchased By New Professor At College

Stroudsburg—From its commanding position overlooking Thomas St., on what used to be called Academy Hill in Stroudsburg, the white-pillared O'Neill house with its brick driveway, stone-walled terrace and masking shrubbery has been regarded with respect for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald O'Neill occupied it since they came to Stroudsburg about 20 years ago when Mr. O'Neill purchased the Penn-Stroud Hotel. It was formerly owned by A. Mitchell Palmer who with his family occupied the house before and during his term as Attorney General of the United States.

Since Mr. O'Neill's death, his widow, Regina, has continued to live in the 16-room house. Having decided to make her home at the Penn-Stroud Hotel, she recently sold the property.

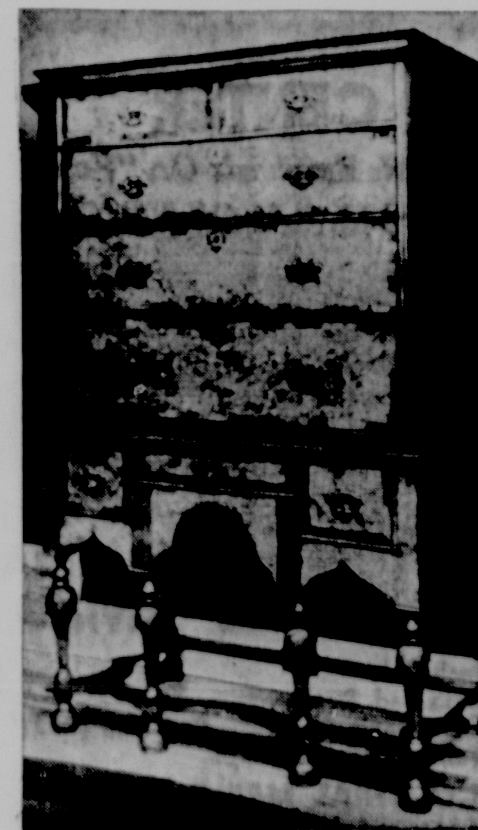

Curiosity has been running high about who had bought it and what was to be done with it. Most persistent rumors was that it had been bought by "a new professor at the college with lots of children and lots of money."

When queried, Mrs. O'Neill offered no comment about money, but said that the "new professor" does have five children, including a new baby. He is Dr. Billy D. Hauserman, who will be a professor in the department of education at East Stroudsburg State College, and is from New York state.

New Beauty For Boots

Are you resisting the boot trend because your ankles are too pretty to hide?

Footwear designer Golo has the answer. Rising from a handsome pair of alligator pumps is a tall and transparent boot, which displays nicely a lady's ankle and gracefully curved calf.

For rainy weather he has also styled the spats boot, in calf and shin heights. The boot spat gives the illusion of being an ordinary, heeled shoe worn with old-fashioned wide spots.

The highest boots yet are Yves St. Laurent's which reach to the thighs like fishing boots. But these are skinny and the leather so lightweight and supple that it bends at the knee joint without pinching.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

The long, lean look is the look for Fall and Winter, and no one is working harder to present it to the American woman than Henry Levine. Henry Levine is the manufacturer of many of the proportioned slacks and stretch pants that are shown in our Wyckoff Sportswear Department.

The Henry Levine stretch pants are of two types . . . wool and nylon and rayon and nylon. The latter have a gabardine-like finish. There are houndstooth checks and luscious solid colors in our display with Black, Cranberry and Loden strongly featured. Since they're made in small, average and tall lengths, there is no reason in the world why every woman cannot be fitted. After all, stretch pants are no longer just "high" fashion, they are basic fashion and represent 80% of all the business done in this type of apparel.

For those of us who still considered "wearing the pants" a bit far out either because we are stuffy or over-stuffed, the culotte dress is a nice way to straddle the fashion fence. "The skirt divided" is an important trend today, and we see culottes in increasing number in all women's apparel departments. One might say it is a tactful, almost-always-flattering way of "skirting" the pants issue.

One of the happiest "side benefits" of the renovating being done throughout our store is the opportunity given Carrie Rusk to expand and better display her sportswear for Sub-Teen girls. Heretofore the sweaters for this age group were always massed together in a cubby hole bounded on one side by blouses and on another side by racks of skirts. There was so much stock in so little space it was almost impossible to see all that was there. Now the Sub Teen sweaters, for instance, have fluffed out over a row of cases roomy enough to permit one's seeing sizes, styles, and colors at a glance. No wonder one mother found it so very easy to select $8.00 worth just the other day!

These Sub Teen slippers and cardigans range in size from 10T to 14T, and we find them with turtle necks, V-necks and crew necks in classic knits, and patterned knits of wool, orlon, blends and mohairs. Some have short sleeves, some long, and the price range begins at 3.98 for the short sleeved and goes to around 10.00.

Colors are vibrant and electric . . . maybe we should simply call them "alive," in the manner of the enthusiastic, energetic young girls who will wear them. Blues are wondrous, greens are rich, and there is CRANBERRY. You see it everywhere. Carrie tells me the most popular pullover with the Back to School crowd has not been a solid color, however, but a combination of multi-colored threads flung across a grayish background. Twice she has re-ordered on this! It reminds me of the rainbow sugar that was my Mother's pet hat of the first World War. (I was a tiny tot then and thought it beautiful!)

In addition to the sweaters and dickeys so popular this year, Carrie also stocks a turtle neck vest which the girls will love . . . a deliberate steal from the boys it is, nonetheless, daintily feminine, and only 5.00.

As though it isn't wonderful enough just to be a "sub-teen, those girls are going to look more adorable than ever this year. We oldsters will be green with envy . . . and how will THAT look with CRANBERRY!

GIRL'S RAINCOATS

Young Moderns—

Newly-Crowned Queen Of The Cotillion Finds That Adventure Follows Her

By Vivian Brown

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Some young people seem to walk around with a magic wand hanging over their heads.

Such a lucky type is Elaine Geslin, 15, of Los Angeles, the newly crowned junior queen of ballroom dancing.

Youngsters everywhere knock on producers' and directors' doors, trying to be heard for roles in movies, stage or television. Not Elaine. She is too shy.

But one day recently she left filmfare to compete in the finals of a ballroom dance contest with her partner, and a few hours after she arrived in New York, she was discovered. Well, more or less.

"I haven't been hired definitely for a part or anything like that, but after this experience, I'll never be timid again about going after one," says Elaine.

Asked Read Script

"There we were — my dance partner, Roy O'Neill, and a boy named Jerry — walking down a side street near Broadway, and a man came along, and asked if I wasn't in a show. The boys, being protective, showed him off with a yeah yeah routine. But the man gave me his card and suggested I call at his office."

"A woman kept me reading for eight pages, and said she couldn't believe I hadn't read script before," says Elaine happily.

The movie role they had in mind for her was that of a 15-year-old girl in "The World of Henry Orient." The only problem was that Elaine looked a little mature for 15. But they are going to let her know, she says.

Started Dancing At 3

Elaine wears her brown hair at shoulder length. She is 5 feet 5 inches tall, weighs 110 pounds, and wears a size 11 dress. Her measurements are 36-23-36, and she is very pretty.

"I've always wanted to be in the movies, and Mom has encouraged me. But I've never done anything about it," she says.

She began dancing lessons at 3, studying jazz and tap. When she joined a ballroom dance class group on the West Coast, she was too shy to go to the monthly cotillions, pleading with her father, "Oh, daddy, please don't make me go."

In 1961 she was crowned Queen of Cotillions by her group at University High, Los Angeles. She and Roy then won the West Coast championship, doing waltz, swing and cha-cha. In the New York finals of the 1963 amateur ballroom championships conducted by the Dance Educators of America, they were crowned Junior Queen and King and presented with gold trophies.

Wants Coed Chances

"I love to swing. It's triple time. But my partner loves waltzes," explains Elaine.

Teen-age cotillions are big deal on the West Coast, she says. She'd like to see coed dancing classes in the public schools — not that you should be obligated to take it, she says. "But if young people would learn to dance, they'd get to love it and it would keep them away from the wrong hangouts."

Berkeley, Calif. Her younger brother, T.A. Soong, is chairman of the board of the Bank of Canton in San Francisco.

First in Parliament

Reflecting over the years, Mme. Chiang says:

"I think I have done something for the women of China. I was the first woman in parliament. I served two terms before I decided not to run again. I saw to it that one-tenth of the parliament were women."

With the Anti-aggression League, we are trying to raise the standard of living, help dependents of the troops. Our women are taking a very active part.

Mice Seeking Snug Winter Home Inspire Some Cosy Casserole Dishes

By Linda Pipher

Daily Record Home Economist

Have you ever wanted to build a better mousetrap? I can tell you how. All you need is a waste-paperbasket, and you won't have to feel like a murderer for you capture them alive! Then it's up to your discretion whether you want to offer them to your cat or dump them in a field (far away).

Billy, of course, thought he had three new pets but after I fairly screamed, "No!" he and his father ceremoniously marched to the nearest field and gave them back to the land.

The next day after the basket was emptied, we put a piece of bread in the bottom of it, and by golly, by dinnertime, we had another mouse! Foolproof, I tell you! It will end your problems — if you have mice, and if you have no cat.

No, no recipes for baked mice, today, but I do have one for a baked onion casserole.

Baked Onion Casserole

2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine

2 large onions, sliced and separated into rings

1/2 pound Swiss Cheese, grated (2 cups)

1/4 teaspoon pepper

1 can cream of chicken soup

1 cup milk

8 slices buttered dry bread (or packaged crumbs)

Melt butter in large frying pan.

Add onions, cook slowly over low heat, stirring often, 20 to 30 minutes or until soft. Spoon into a 6-cup casserole, spread grated cheese evenly over top; sprinkle with pepper.

Heat soup and milk in same frying pan, stirring constantly, until smooth; pour over onion-cheese layer, stir lightly, using tip of knife to let sauce flow to bottom of casserole; overlap bread slices in ring on top or sprinkle with bread crumbs. Bake in a 350-degree oven about 30 minutes, or until golden brown.

Heat soup and milk in same frying pan, stirring constantly, until smooth; pour over onion-cheese layer, stir lightly, using tip of knife to let sauce flow to bottom of casserole; overlap bread slices in ring on top or sprinkle with bread crumbs. Bake in a 350-degree oven about 30 minutes, or until golden brown.

Heat soup and milk in same frying pan, stirring constantly, until smooth; pour over onion-cheese layer, stir lightly, using tip of knife to let sauce flow to bottom of casserole; overlap bread slices in ring on top or sprinkle with bread crumbs. Bake in a 350-degree oven about 30 minutes, or until golden brown.

Heat soup and milk in same frying pan, stirring constantly, until smooth; pour over onion-cheese layer, stir lightly, using tip of knife to let sauce flow to bottom of casserole; overlap bread slices in ring on top or sprinkle with bread crumbs. Bake in a 350-degree oven about 30 minutes, or until golden brown.

Heat soup and milk in same frying pan, stirring constantly, until smooth; pour over onion-cheese layer, stir lightly, using tip of knife to let sauce flow to bottom of casserole; overlap bread slices in ring on top or sprinkle with bread crumbs. Bake in a 350-degree oven about 30 minutes, or

Ralston Shreds Johnson With Sharp Tennis Play

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (AP)—National tennis fans got their first look Friday at the new Dennis Ralston—razor-sharp and impeccably self-controlled—as the 21-year-old sensation from Bakersfield, Calif. led a cordon of favorites into the second round of the National Championships.

Ralston didn't ruffle a strand of his slicked-down brown hair in brushing past sturdy, bespectacled Walter Johnson, 19-year-old ranking junior from Hollywood, Fla., 6-1, 6-2, 6-2.

Perfect Gentleman
Ralston, who has been suspended once for court antics, was the perfect gentleman as he cut down the strong young junior from Florida.

The latest California court comet was joined in the men's advance by the two best Australians, Roy Emerson and Ken Fletcher, and Bobby Wilson of Britain, whom Ralston may face next month in the Davis Cup Interzone matches in England.

The 26-year-old Emerson, seeded No. 2, toyed with Chauncey Steele III, 19-year-old Harvard University student, 6-1, 6-4, 6-2. Fletcher, seeded No. 5, held on for a two-hour 9-7, 4-6, 6-1, 14-12 triumph over Premjit Lal of India.

"I feel great. I'm sharp. I'm here to win," Emerson said.

He has been made an underdog to top-seeded Chuck McKinley, the Wimbledon champion, and Dennis Ralston 21-year-old U.S. Davis Cup ace seeded No. 3.

Sweating profusely in the humid, threatening weather and dragging his heels at times, Fletcher, 23-year-old member of the Australian Davis Cup Team, finally won out over talented Premjit Lal of India in the concrete stadium 9-7, 4-6, 6-1, 15-12.

"If I hadn't won that fourth set, I don't know whether I could have made it," said the good-looking, curly-haired Queenslander afterward. "I've just come here from St. Moritz where you can see snow on the mountains."

Miss Moffit Wins

In the women's division, Miss Moffit, of Long Beach, Calif., runner-up to Margaret Smith at Wimbledon and No. 3 seeded here, eliminated Almut Sturm of Germany 6-3, 6-3. Miss Bueno of Brazil, champion here in 1959, smothered 16-year-old Mary Ann Eisel of St. Louis 6-0, 6-4.

A total of 80 matches, including first round tests in both men's and women's divisions and delayed qualifying matches in the men's field, kept the 20 grass courts humming.

The top-seeded favorites—Chuck McKinley of San Antonio, Tex. and Australia's Miss Smith—set out Friday's activities. McKinley plays Saturday against Eduardo Zuleta of Ecuador. Miss Smith drew an opening round bye.

Other Matches

In other headline matches, Antonio Palacios of Mexico smashed young Ed Turville Jr. of St. Petersburg, Fla., 6-1, 6-3, 6-2. Tom Edlefer of Berkeley, Calif. won over Andres Donnadieu of Mexico 6-2, 6-3, 6-4. Kay Denning of Australia defeated Caroline Yates-Bell of England 10-8, 6-2. Nancy Richey of Dallas downed Mrs. Pat Stewart Edrich of New York 6-0, 6-2, and Belmar Gundersen of Tarpon Springs, Fla. won over Mimi Kanarek of Lynbrook, N.Y., 6-3, 6-1.

Quit Or No?—Decision Up To Casey

NEW YORK (AP)—It's up to Casey Stengel whether he continues as manager of the New York Mets, club president and general manager George Weiss said after a meeting with the 73-year-old pilot Friday night.

Stengel was evasive and refused to answer directly when asked whether he would be back for the 1964 season.

They met for an hour before the Mets' game with Milwaukee. Weiss denied there was any serious rift between them. They were reported to have had a falling out over a player personnel on a recent trip to Chicago and there were published reports Thursday that Stengel may be through as manager of the 10th place team at the end of this season.

Stan Is Shown 'Brotherly Love'

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The city of Philadelphia honored Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals Friday night on the occasion of his final visit as an active player.

Musial, a native of Donora, Pa., has announced his retirement at the end of the current season. The St. Louis outfielder was presented with a plaque before the Cardinals met the Philadelphia Phillies.

Dodgers' Drysdale Faces Marichal

LOS ANGELES — Big Don Drysdale was on the mound for the Los Angeles Dodgers last night while the San Francisco Giants, still stunned by their opening 11-1 loss to Sandy Koufax the night before, banked their dimming hopes on the wily Juan Marichal in the crucial series between the West Coast rivals.

Given the most lavish support any Dodger pitcher has had in 45 games, Koufax pitched a three-hitter to become the season's first 20-game winner Thursday night.

That put the National League leaders 6½ games in front of the Giants and seven in front of third-place St. Louis.

Thursday night's opener of the big four-game series drew a crowd of 54,978—the largest in the majors this season.

12 Fillies Fight It Out In Lassie Stakes Today

A dozen 2-year-old fillies will fight it out for $18,505 Saturday in the Arlington Lassie Stakes at Arlington Park, with J. Kel Housse's Sari's Song favored to turn back an eastern challenge by Wheetley Stable's Castle Forties.

Sari's Song, winner of five of nine starts including the Hollywood Lassie and Arlington's Princess Pat Stakes, is the 6½ choice and will be ridden by Willie Shoemaker. Castle Forties, with Bill Hartack up, has captured four of eight including the $11,320 Sorority at Monmouth Park. Castle Forties is an entry with Bold Queen. The pair is listed at 2-1.

Pro Feature: N. Y. Packers

Like all good menus, the pro football line-up for the long Labor Day weekend has the dessert at the end — Green Bay's mighty Packers against their No. 1 rivals, the New York Giants.

That one is scheduled Monday night at Green Bay, the 11th game on the exhibition schedule that opened with two games Friday night, has seven more slated Saturday and one Sunday.

In all, 14 National Football League teams will be in action and all eight American Football League squads have their final tune-ups before starting regular season play.

There are features galore, including the bid of the Minnesota Vikings to remain unbeaten in a clash with Philadelphia's Eagles and the old, old rivalry between the Chicago Bears and their former cross-town rivals, the Cardinals, now of St. Louis.

Most Interesting

The New York-Green Bay match, however, may be the most interesting. It's the first meeting of the two since the Packers won their second straight league title with a 16-7 victory in a brutal cold at Yankee Stadium.

Paul Hornung, of course, is gone from that Packer team and the Giants, 1-2 for the season, are reeling with injuries to their top backs, particularly Phil King, Alex Webster, and Frank Gifford.

But there's spice a-plenty in the projected renewal of the duel between Green Bay fullback Jim Taylor and the Giants' sturdy middle linebacker, Sam Huff. The Packers also have won five straight from New York, including two playoff games, two exhibitions and one regular season game.

The long schedule opened with Pittsburgh, 1-2, at Detroit, 2-4, and Dallas, 1-2, vs. San Francisco, 0-3, at Bakersfield, Calif., Friday night.

Saturday Features

The St. Louis Cardinals at Chicago and Minnesota vs. Philadelphia at Hershey, Pa., games loom as the features of the NFL Saturday schedule.

The Cards and Bears will be resuming the league's oldest rivalry in their game at Chicago. They haven't played since the Bears romped 31-7 in 1959, giving them a 45-19 margin in the old series. St. Louis is 1-1 for the exhibition season, Chicago 2-1.

Minnesota's surprising young Vikings have won three straight exhibitions, including last week's 17-16 upset of the Giants. They are expected to unveil Ron Vanderkelen, the Rose Bowl hero, at quarterback. Philadelphia is only 1-2 but looked good in rolling up 420 yards in a 41-13 victory over Washington last week.

The rest of the Saturday schedule has unbeaten Baltimore, 3-0, vs. winless Washington, 0-2, at Norfolk, Va., and Cleveland at Los Angeles, each 1-2, and each showing signs of improving.

In the American League, the Saturday slate has Houston, 2-2, vs. Kansas City, 3-1, at Wichita, Kan., 2-2, vs. Buffalo, 2-1, at Winston-Salem, N.C., and Oakland 2-1, at San Diego, 2-1. Sunday, Boston and New York, each still looking for its first victory, clash at New Brunswick, N.J.

Downing Downs Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP)—Lefthander Al Downing, continuing a string of outstanding performances by New York Yankee pitchers, stopped Baltimore 4-1 on six hits Friday night.

The American League-leading Yankees scored three runs in the first inning — two of them unearned — to ease the way for Downing, 11-4 since he was recalled from Richmond June 6.

Yankee pitchers have allowed only six earned runs in their last 78 innings — an earned run average of 0.77 — and 19 in the last 120 innings for a 1.42 ERA.

New York 300 010 000—4 8 0
Baltimore 000 010 010—1 6 1
Downing 11-4. Stock 9 and Orsino. W—Downing 11-4. L—Barber 18-10.

No Knockout As Entertainer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Joe Louis made his debut Thursday night as a casino entertainer.

The consensus was that as a song and dance man he's a tremendous boxer.

The former heavyweight champion of the world sang a duet with Pearl Bailey.

Louis, 49, skipped a luminous robe in luminous boxing shoes as chorus girls cavorted on a darkened stage.

Said Miss Bailey: "Working with him is beautiful. But I have to watch out in our shadow boxing sequence. Once in rehearsal I hit him in the stomach. Because of his fighter instinct, he automatically hit me on the ear with his open left hand."

"It didn't hurt. My ear was just numb."

Why did Joe try show biz? "Because it pays well and it's a job."

TV From Tokyo?

BERLIN (AP)—Plans to transmit television coverage of next year's Olympic Games direct from Tokyo by a satellite relay are well advanced, West German Post Minister Richard Stuecklen said Friday.

He said that a mobile relay station to handle satellite transmissions will be tested in the fall and a permanent receiver is being built in West Germany.

Mystery Woman Linked To Butts

ATLANTA (AP)—A mystery woman was brought into the Wally Butts libel controversy Friday by attorneys for Curtis Publishing Co.

The attorneys in arguing for a retrial of Butts' libel suit contended that U.S. Judge Lewis R. Morgan erred in ruling out testimony from and about a woman identified only as "E. Smith" or "E. C. Smith" of Atlanta.

No other details were given about the woman who, Curtis attorneys said, traveled with Butts on numerous occasions, visited him in hotel and motel rooms, and was given a car by the former Georgia coach.

Crowley Main Speaker At Holy Name Dinner

STROUDSBURG — Jim Crowley, one of the "Four Horsemen" of Notre Dame gridiron fame, will be the principal speaker at the annual kick-off dinner of the Holy Name Society of St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Church.

The dinner will be held Sept. 11 at 6:30 p.m. at Glen Brook Country Club.

Until a few weeks ago, Crowley had been serving as chairman of the Pennsylvania State Boxing Commission, a post he had held since 1954.

Successful Coach

Famous for a wit and humor that made him a favorite of the late Knute Rockne, Irish coach, Crowley proved a successful collegiate coach himself.

After launching his career as assistant backfield coach at Georgia, Sleepy Jim (as he later became known) took over the coaching reins at Michigan State in 1929. In four years there, his teams won 22 games, lost eight and tied three.

In 1933, Crowley accepted the head coaching post at Fordham University where he guided the Rams to three successive ties with Pitt which, at that time, was the Eastern grid powerhouse. Crowley's 1941 team was awarded the Lambert Trophy, symbolic of the best team in the East.

During World War II, Crowley served as a lieutenant commander in the Navy where he directed the physical conditioning and recreation of the fighting forces in the Southwest Pacific.

After the war, Crowley served as commissioner of the All-American Football Conference, retiring in 1947 to enter a business career.

Colts Coast To 5-1 Win Over Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — The Houston Colts pushed across three runs in the first inning, and coasted to a 5-1 triumph over the Chicago Cubs Friday behind Ken Johnson's six-hit pitching.

Houston 300 000 011—5 13 0
Chicago 000 000 001—1 6 2

Johnson and Bateman; Koonce, Hobble (1), Elston (9) and Bertell, W—Johnson 7-17, L—Koonce 1-4.

Home runs — Houston, Runnes (2), Spangler (4), Chicago, San- (2).

Jockey Sidelined For Six Weeks

DEL MAR, Calif. (AP)—Jockey Rudy Campas will be sidelined from racing for six weeks due to a freak accident, it was learned Friday.

The rider was thrown in the walking ring Thursday en route to the post on Barry for the fourth race. The horse reared, tossing Campas. He suffered a compressed fracture of a vertebra.

Jets Sign Butts

PEEKSKILL, N.Y. (AP)—Bob Butts, a 240-pound free agent, was signed by the New York Jets of the American Football League Friday and was immediately installed as the left linebacker for the game with the Boston Patriots in Rutgers Stadium on Sunday.

Hawks Ink Two

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Hawks of the National Basketball Association announced Friday that forward Mike Farmer and guard John Barnhill had signed their contracts for this season.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Saturday, August 31, 1963
March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Artistic matters, work on activating some dormant area will bring happiness, fresh goals, and help build good will. Don't waste time on unworkable projects, however.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Venus now stimulates your personality and abilities, but you must cooperate by using your talents. Clearly a day for reasonable, logical thinking and action.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — The position of Mercury now stimulates activity, but be careful not to overtax yourself. Skilled action, well-paced, should bring progress in keeping with high hopes.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Do not make plans based on a false promise or what you build will have a structure weak enough to crumble down when least expected. Neither be too sensitive to day's aggravations. Easy does it.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Less than your finest will not be acceptable now. And people know what you CAN produce, as you do yourself. Stress quality above quantity of effort.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Your planets will help you find sensible solutions to problems now. Dividends indicated from past good work and interest in the right methods. This should be a good day.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Punctuality and determination are fine if accompanied by flexibility. You may be asked to yield some ground, and it could be the wisest move yet.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — If you do not understand a person or matter, seek out the facts diligently. Do not rely on guess work. Emphasize your innate tolerance and resourcefulness.

November 24 to December 23 (Sagittarius) — A self-possessed, confident manner and a calm planning, together with a sound investment of time and energies into the requirements of this day. Note where you can improve your procedures.

December 24 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Adaptability and aggressiveness should lead your way now. And lose in a dash of well-seasoned humor. You can have no better day for pressing forward to better things.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Take up the post of "ball" whatever you can and ought to make this day count on the side of constructiveness and quality living. You can accomplish a great deal in little ways.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Your planetary influences point toward the probability of too hastily formed opinions, incorrect judgments, don't retreat, however, when forward action is needed.

You LOVIN' TODAY give a big boost to any gathering. You are the quiet, efficient worker, yet can stomp up when the occasion demands. You can keep a confidence, battle with power, invent a new device, investigate thoroughly, weed out falsehood effectively. Put doubting and skepticism out of your already fertile imagination. Keep everything in proper perspective, and letting little things grow out-sized. Over-sensitivity is a fault which must be curbed. Birthdate: Theophile Gautier, French novelist.

Delaware Water Gap

N. E. Burd

The news is filtering here to friends that John White, son of Rev. and Mrs. R. White, former Presbyterian pastor here, was married some months ago. Folks here recall John as a lively little red-headed fellow and are glad to hear that he has grown to a fine young man.

Miss Sandra Carlton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Carlton, who has been employed at Altier's above Marshalls Creek this summer, will be leaving for Philadelphia. She is enrolled as a student at Penn State University.

Suzanne Carol Angel is the name of the baby who arrived in Philadelphia for Mr. and Mrs. T. Angel. The mother is the former Judy Randt, daughter of Mrs. Helen Newhart Randt and niece of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carlton.

Friday the Ben Gershensky's celebrate their 21st wedding anniversary.

The Seaman cottage has been open all summer, on Glenwood Avenue, Clarence Seaman being up from Philadelphia for the summer as usual.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Jester of St. Louis have as guests at their summer home here this week Mr. Berry Tracy, the Curator of Decorative Arts at Newark Museum, N.J., and Dr. Donald Bond, Director of Public Health, San Francisco, California.

Savlorburg

Mrs. Anna M. Serfass

Phone WY 2-4326

Mr. and Mrs. George Budge, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Faustick returned home Saturday after spending a week's vacation at Wildwood, N.J.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meisell of Bethlehem, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Meisell and daughter, Betty of Wind Gap were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Meisell Sr.

Tobyhanna

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kohn of Easton, Pa., are spending a few days visiting relatives.
